THE CAPITOLSenator Frear Would Have His Home City
Enter Race For The New Building.

FOUR CITIES IN THE RACE NOW

Milwaukee, Madison, Oshkosh And Hudson All Seek The State Seat Of Government—Many New Bills.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Feb. 14.—Nearly three hundred new bills were presented today. Senator Frear proposes to remove the capitol to Hudson, because it is far removed from Milwaukee and near St. Paul. Senator Noble would have the delegates to the national nominating conventions elected at the spring elections. Senator Bird wants $30,000 additional appropriation for the Wisconsin monument at Vicksburg. Senator Frear introduced a bill to appropriate $2,500 each for acting as attorneys for Secretary of State House in the republican factional contest. Senator McGillivray again offered his anti-trust bill, which was defeated two years ago. Other bills provide for the payment of Treasurer Kompf's salary, complete block system on the railroads, city or village inspection of the quality of gas, a county commissioner's system instead of boards of supervisors, a repeal of the mortgage tax law and the exemption of credits, the placing of home building and investment companies under the building and loan company restrictions, salaries for mayors and aldermen, woman suffrage in the primary elections and on town matters. A petition from the North Dakota legislature was received in favor of the Superior grain inspection bill. A constitutional amendment proposed to give cities the right to amend their own charters, called "City Home Rule," was introduced.

Arctic Weather
Arctic weather and blinding snow, tying up almost all trains, delayed the beginning of the week's work in the legislature by keeping away members and preventing the presence of a quorum in either house. In the senate last night, however, the roll call was dispensed with and members allowed the introduction of new bills, even though there was no quorum present for the transaction of business.

Merton's Bill
Senator Merton introduced a bill to prohibit the presence of girls and women at dances in saloons and places where liquor is sold. A fine of $50 to $100 or 60 days in jail is the penalty provided for violation of the proposed law. Another important bill by Senator Merton would relieve the bribe-taker from the penalties of the penal laws and place them upon the giver or offerer of bribes.

Hudnall's Bill

HOTEL BREVORT BURNED
TO GROUND LAST NIGHTTwo Hundred Guests Had A Narrow Escape
From Awful Death In A
Chicago Fire.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-M'RAE.]
Chicago, Ill., Feb. 14.—Fire, which broke out at two-thirty o'clock this morning, destroyed the Hotel Brevort at 143 Madison street, and imperiled the lives of two hundred guests. The fire started on the third floor of the building and soon filled the house with smoke, making the escape of the guests difficult. Many were barely able to reach the street clad only in their night clothes, and took refuge in nearby hotels and drugstores. The temperature was from five to ten below. Olive Vail climbed down a fire-escape and fell ten feet to the ground, being slightly injured. Five firemen were injured by the falling of the east wall, which also did ten thousand dollars' worth of damage to the La Salle theatre. The fire tied up the north and west side cable lines, keeping thousands of people from work. The telephone system was also seriously interfered with. The loss to the hotel building is a quarter of a million. The fire department responded to forty-seven alarms during the night. The Miller building on Clinton street was totally destroyed, the loss being two hundred thousand dollars.

to provide for the distribution of 95 per cent of the taxes raised by the state through the operation of the new ad valorem railroad taxation law. He would have the money given to the counties in which the railroad property is situated. This law was passed two years ago and has been one of the leading La Follette issues in Wisconsin. It raised the taxes of the railroads half a million dollars, and took the place of the license fee taxes. The passage of this act would take from the state the largest source of revenue aside from the school tax. Senator Sanborn introduced a bill to limit a hunter's take to ten birds in one day and to limit shipments of birds to 50 birds. The penalty proposed is a fine of $50 to $100 or 60 days to six months in jail.

Other Bills
Among the other bills introduced were the following: By Senator Sanborn, relating to the publication of the notices of sales of real estate for taxes; two bills to create the towns of Presque Isle and Hackley in Vilas county; to create the county of Superior from parts of the counties of Bayfield and Douglas; to allow the university regents to conduct experiments in agriculture wherever in the state they may see fit; to provide that improvements on homestead lands shall not be taxed until the homesteader has held the land for five years; relating to the organization of new towns; to increase the appropriation to the State Historical society from $15,000 to $20,000 a year; making the open season for trout and August 15 instead of September 1.

Police Power
By Senator Hudnall, to give police more power in the suppression of gambling; providing that the shares of stock in banks shall be taxed, instead of all taxes on capital, surplus and other assets, except real estate; to repay the money received by the state from the sale of swamp lands to the several counties in which such land is situated; to require judges to record their reasons for granting special dispensations for the marriage of persons divorced more recently than one year; requiring county clerks to publish the names of persons taking out marriage licenses; changing the boundaries of the interstate park at the Dalles of the St. Croix river; providing for a tax of 2 per cent on the premiums collected by casualty and surety companies; relieving railroads from taxation on elevators owned by them.

SECOND TRIAL OF
COOK COMMENCEDW. J. Rodawalt, Complaining Witness,
Pursues the Odd But Profitable
Vocation of Hunting Skunks.

After examining a large number of citizens who were found unqualified for service for one reason or another, the attorneys in the Cook trial finally secured the necessary twelve this morning. The personnel of the jury is as follows: W. M. Eldredge, Joseph P. Baker, J. M. Echlin, C. N. Van Kliff, Otto Buggs, Daniel Powers, Louis Trumble, Homer Paul, William Brown, A. M. Church, M. C. Olin, and Joseph Denning. The trial commenced at two o'clock this afternoon. The criminal charge against Cook is preferred by W. J. Rodawalt, husband of Mrs. Ida Rodawalt of Allens Grove, town of Harmony. The complaining witness has not been living at home for some time, and certain evidence offered at the previous trial seemed to indicate that Cook had been contributing to the support of the family. Rodawalt's favorite vocation is trapping the festive skunk whose hide brings a good price in the market. When his wife testified that he bought the children no presents on a certain Christmas, the prosecution was able to show that five fine polecat pelts which he brought home as an offering were disposed of and the proceeds, amounting to several dollars, used for this purpose.

PRESIDENT ON RACE PROBLEMRoosevelt Delivers A Notable Address At The Gotham, Lincoln Dinner.

THE NORTH AND SOUTH TO UNITE

Solution Of The Question Rests In The Hands Of The People Of The Nation To Decide Once
And For All.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-M'RAE.]
New York, Feb. 14.—President Roosevelt delivered two notable addresses in this city Monday night—one to the Republican club on the negro problem, and the other to the Press club on the foreign policy of the United States.

In discussing the race question before the Republican club the president declared it was not a sectional one, and that it was one on which the whole nation must unite in seeking a solution.

To the members of the Press club the president urged that all writers for the American press should always bear in mind that courtesy and fair treatment is as necessary in the intercourse between nations as between individuals.

The Lincoln dinner was held at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, and, in the number of guests and elaborateness of decorations, exceeded any function of its character ever held in New York.

The guests numbered more than 1,300, and not only crowded the main banquet hall but the Astor gallery, the myrtle room, and even the foyer, on the second floor, the whole of which was used. Among the guests were 275 women, who dined in the Astor gallery.

Does Not Scold South.

The president's address, spoken with the broad tolerance of the spirit of Abraham Lincoln, was not a lecture to the people of the south nor an arraignment of the white men for denying political equality, justice, or opportunity to the black man. On the contrary he declared at the outset of his address that "all clear sighted and generous men of the north have the heartiest respect for those brave and earnest men of the south who, in the face of fearful difficulties, are doing all that men can do for the betterment alike of white and of black."

As if to further emphasize his belief that the south must not be unjustly criticised for its attitude toward the negro, the president declared that "the attitude of the north toward the negro is far from what it should be, and there is need that the north also should act in good faith upon the principle of giving to each man what is justly due him."

South Is Deepest Concerned.
President Roosevelt's whole contention was that, while the race problem is one for the whole nation, it is the South that really confronts it in its most perplexing form and that it is the South that has the most to do with its solution.

He gave full measure to the perplexities and difficulties of the problem. He admitted that "it is not possible, in offhand fashion, to confer the priceless boons of freedom, industrial efficiency, political capacity and domestic morality."

The president did not hesitate to draw a broad distinction between civil and social privileges. He declared: "Full recognition of the fundamental fact that all men should stand on an equal footing as regards civil privileges, in no way interferes with recognition of the further fact that all reflecting men of both races are united in feeling that race purity must be maintained."

Problem Will Be Solved.

President Roosevelt grew eloquent in declaring his faith in the ability and courage and fearlessness of the South in meeting the race problem, and in the wisdom of the people of the whole country in solving the question. For, after all, he said, the race problem, although it affects the South most vitally, is one for the whole people to solve. The North and South, he declared, must work together in reaching the solution. "For weal or for woe," he said, "we are knit together, and we shall go up or go down together; and I believe that we shall go up and not down, because I have an abiding faith in the generosity, the courage, the resolution and the common sense of all my countrymen."

FAILS TO STAY PENALTY
OF DEATH ON THE PAIRWoman's Confession Of Guilt Will Not Save Her Negro Accomplice From The Noose.

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 14.—Unless the board of pardons, which meets in Harrisburg on Wednesday, recommends the commutation of the death sentences of Mrs. Kate Edwards and Samuel Greason of Berks county, the woman and her accomplice will be hanged on Thursday of this week in the Reading jail for the murder of John Edwards, her husband.

The case came before the supreme court finally Monday on two petitions, one by the woman, in which she held Greason blameless of the murder of her husband and prayed that he be given a new trial, and another by Greason, in which he asked for a reopening of his case on the ground of newly discovered evidence. Both petitions were refused, only three of the seven members of the court voting in favor of the petitions. There was no opinion filed, the papers simply being indorsed "refused."

Bases Appeal on Confession.
The newly discovered evidence referred to in the Greason petition was the confession of Mrs. Edwards in which she stated that Greason had no connection with the crime; that she killed her husband and that her daughter Mary assisted her in throwing her husband's body into a cistern.

Counsel for Greason confidently expected that the supreme court would reopen the case, and Mrs. Edwards

...Forty Years Ago...

State Firemen's Association.—This body meets in this city this evening for the transaction of business connected with the organization.

Filling Up.—As the time for the commencement of the draft draws near volunteering is continually increasing and towns everywhere in the country are filling up their quotas. We believe there is not a town in this county that will be compelled to submit to this draft.

The Concert Last Evening.—The concert of the Madisonians at Lippin's hall last evening was attended quite numerous and was an excellent entertainment, and the efforts of the performers being frequently and loudly applauded. While the vocal part of the entertainment gave so much satisfaction, the execution of Mr. Smith on the piano was especially fine. With years of experience and practice added his present attainments, he promises to make one of the finest pianists of the day. The flute duet accompanying the piano was a fine thing and well received. We believe the audience was well pleased with the concert, and the performers with the reception they met with.

"The Situation" in the South.—January has run its sand and spring approaches. The war, which further south, has known no pause, will soon wake again in Virginia. Grant is gathering his forces around us. His army is entrenched at hand. Sheridan is in the valley, Thomas is in Tennessee, Sherman is menacing our southern connection, with his face southward. All signs indicate an early combined movement upon our great lines of railway, and upon the capital of our country. Three months of winter were precious months of preparation. Two of them are gone, one of them remains. Has our work been accomplished? Have our plans been formed? Have our measures been taken? Has our policy been agreed upon? Has our army been reorganized? Has it been strengthened? Alas for the answers that truth requires! Alas for the time of preparation is ending before preparation is commenced.

REGINALD D. DE KOVAN

Madame Schumann-Heine, the famous Teutonic grand opera singer, who was always heretofore sung German music, recently announced that she had decided to sing an American opera, and Mr. Reginald D. DeKovan, who has risen from a Chicago bank clerkship to the position of the foremost musical composer in America, has been selected to write the new work.

FOOTLIGHT & FLASHES

The announcement which will, no doubt, prove a most welcome one to the patrons of the Myers Grand is to the effect that Mason and Mason in their new musical comedy success, "Fritz & Saltz," under the direction of Messrs. Broadhurst & Currie, will be seen on Friday evening, Feb. 17. The production is entirely new, brightened and polished for this season's campaign and will no doubt prove the "piece de resistance" in the line of musical comedy offerings this season, and there is every cause for the assertion that it will not relinquish its grasp to that distinction. In fact, the force really seems to grow in favor as one sees it. The performance will be found to equal, if not excel, even those musical little or no room for improvement. One of the features of the show will be the chorus of thirty singing beauties. These indispensable adjuncts to the successful modern twentieth century musical comedy have been supplied with costumes which are described as being revelations of the modiste's art in itself. The new musical numbers and the list of entertaining melodies will tickle the ear, several of which are confidently predicted, will become popular hits. The entire show is up to date and is well worth seeing by the admirers of clever musical comedies.

James A. Herne stands as a great name in the dramatic world when it comes to painting rural scenes, but in George Ade he has a worthy successor, and one who has greater ability at depicting contemporary characters. Ade, in his spectacular comedy, "The County Chairman," not a musical comedy, but a comedy telling in a delightful manner a story of heart interest, drew a series of types of the dwellers of the towns of the great middle west so striking as to command universal attention. This comedy is the best thing in its way put on the stage in years, and it had an unprecedented run of 312 performances at Wallack's, New York, and 115 performances at the Studebaker theatre, Chicago. This comedy appeals to everyone. Grover Cleveland laughed heartily all through it and remarked that he had been through such campaigns as the county chairman engineered on the stage, and many other statesmen have witnessed the play and declare it to be one of the finest pictures ever put on the stage. This stupendous production with its great big cast and ensemble of one hundred players presented precisely in the same manner which characterized its 312 times on Broadway, New York, which Henry W. Savage offers, will be the attraction at the Myers Grand, Thursday, Feb. 16. There is not the slightest doubt but what it will be the event of the season. There is a wholesome, clean humor about it that is contagious and causes roars of laughter during the entire performance. Theodore Roberts, in the name part, has made the hit of his career. He gives a perfect interpretation of Ade wit, George Thatcher has been furnished with the principal comedy role, that of Sassafras Livingston, a negro, who, as a politician would express it, refuses to "stay bought." Sassafras caters impartially to both sides of the contest in Antioch, the stage town where a campaign is being waged, and finally lands with the winner, Florida Kingsley, Florence Smyth. Florence Gerald, Zenaida Williams and others go to make up a remarkably strong company. Henry W. Savage, in addition to this highly accomplished company, has staged the production very lavishly. It is one of the great events in the theatrical world.

DESIRE TO BREAK GOLF BALL TRUST

Petition May Be Sent to Moody—$1,500,000 Expended for Spheres by Players.

Janesville golf players will be interested in the fact that Attorney-General Moody may soon be petitioned to break up the golf ball trust now that he has finished up the beef trust. Players in the Chevy Chase and Columbia Golf clubs, two of the largest and most aristocratic in the east and probably the most widely famed in the country, believe the price of golf balls is too high. There is a combination of manufacturers which keeps up prices. The players figure that "lopping" balls at 50 cents a clip with clock or midiron is too expensive and that what the number of balls lost by slicing or pulling is considered the game is extravagant.

Say Price is Too High. "Golf balls are as much a necessity to golf players as meat is to families," say the players, "and the price is too high." Should the attorney general decide to take up the case of the golf ball trust, a very interesting question might arise when it reaches the United States supreme court. Associate Justice Harlan is one of the greatest players in the Chevy Chase Club. Hardly a day passes in winter or summer that Justice Harlan is not playing. When the weather is too bad it is said he walks over the links. Interested as he is in the game, objection might be made by the attorneys for the trust against his sitting in judgment.

Trust Affects 300,000. Circulars have been received in the last day or two by golf players that certain kinds of golf balls are to be raised to $9 a dozen, which will make them worth 75 cents each. It is estimated that there are 300,000 golf players in the United States. The life of a golf ball is about one game, and it is a poor player who does not participate in at least ten games a year at the lowest possible estimate $1,500,000 is spent every year for golf balls alone.

PEACE PROSPECTS.

If the wish is father to the thought in the peace rumors so extensively current at present, the wish itself is a good one, and indicates an international frame of mind which in itself makes for a settlement between Russia and Japan. We have had very clear indications that the Russian government does not encourage the expression of public opinion; but even on the news which is allowed to leak out, or which perhaps cannot be fully concealed, it is fair to surmise that the war party can have no illusions as to national sentiment on the campaign with Japan.

February 5 was the anniversary of the outbreak of the war, and it is questionable if any nation can show in its history such a year of successive humiliating defeats. In spite of the incompetence of the French generals and the fatuity of an emperor unscrupulous without being able, the French armies made by comparison a better showing against the Germans in 1870. They won a few small battles and incidentally the French people, as distinguished from the imperial government, earned the sympathy of the world before the Germans dictated terms of peace at Versailles. The series of defeats of the Russian army, from the crossing of the Yalu to the last failure on the Sha River, has been unrelieved by a single victory. In every detail which makes for victory the Japanese have been incomparably superior. But the record of the Russian army becomes almost respectable by comparison with the exploits of a navy which, on paper at least, was four times the strength of that of the Japanese. Every possible fault, from crass incompetence to absolute cowardice, has been committed. That heterogeneous collection of war vests of all sorts, sizes, shapes and dates, known as the Baltic fleet, bears the same relation to an efficient navy that the government of Venezuela or Hayti does to that of this country or France.

The Russian people are not humiliated by the defeats their regiments and ships have suffered. It was no quarrel of theirs. It is true they bear the burden of the sins of their rulers and pay the penalty, but the Russian people themselves suffer no discredit in making peace. It would, in fact, be a triumph of public morality over official turpitude. The bureaucracy has everything to lose in continuing the war, and nothing to gain. Russia will have spent $100,000,000 recently sought in Paris before the end of April, even if they never raise the loan at all. If it took the Japanese, with the command of the sea, eight months to capture Port Arthur, it would take the Russians eight years with the port open. Even supposing General Oyama could be compelled to retreat on Corea, all his communications are open and easily protected. It is not to be supposed that the Russian army, defeated in positions of its own choosing, would have any greater success in positions chosen by the competent Japanese generals.

The Russian army, besides, is wanted at home. Discontent, on the best possible showing, is wide-spread, and requires all the military force the Russian government can command for the mere duties of police. Bitter experience is the only school for fools, and even the Romanoff, who, like the Bourbon, may be said to learn nothing and forget nothing, must at last accept the inevitable. The markets of Europe, in fact, show that the declarations of an unalterable determination to fight over a period of years, made in St. Petersburg, and repeated by the Russian representatives abroad, are largely intended for use in subsequent negotiations. The Russian budget shows that borrowing abroad is depended upon almost entirely for the conduct of a campaign which is costing $10,000,000 a week. Such borrowing is already being made at rates undreamed of a year ago, and in the present state of feeling throughout Europe and this country it is doubtful if more money could be raised without a definite pledge of peace. It is idle to talk of creating a new navy by the simple progress of buying new ships. The men to man them, the officers to command them, are not made in a day or a year. It is too much to say that Russia could not in ten years create such a navy as Japan possesses now.

The grisly logic of events ultimately convinces the most obstinate.

To the Russian government the maintenance of the present regime is infinitely more important than conquest in the Far East. That can wait, as it has waited for centuries. With Japan in the way it is no longer the movement along the line of least resistance which it was. Some other outlet to warm water must be chosen, and even now there is serious need of rest for recuperation and for a free hand in dealing with the terrible problems presented in the present condition of the Russian people. The Russian credit so far is no seriously damaged, but even another year's campaign would mean at least a large emission of fiat money and perhaps the passing of the interest on the internal loans. It is not difficult, therefore, to see good grounds for the rumors of an early termination of the war in the Far East. Japan is likely to exact a high price, but any probable conditions would be cheap in Russia's present difficulties.

REMOVAL OF STATE CAPITAL.

The chipper manner in which a number of "interested" newspapers of the state are discussing the removal of the state capital will do much to make the project appear absurd. Of course, it is absurd. The capital of the state is not "passed around," in order that one locality may not have the benefit of it all the time. That is the plea made by one newspaper that says it hopes to have the capital located in the town where it is published. And there are many others no less foolish and "trifling."

There are two possible objections to the capital in Madison. One of them is the character of the hotel accommodations there, and the other is the miserable railroad service there, or more especially out of there. Both of these faults can probably be corrected. That of the service given by the railroads can be, if the railroad commission bill now known as the administration bill, becomes a law.

Milwaukee has registered its claim to have the capital removed here; but it is doubtful if many people would care to have it. Milwaukee does not especially aspire to become a capital city. It is a business town, and business and too much politics do not mix well. We have all the politics here now that is good for us.

Madison has the "capital look." It is the capital, and has been for so long a time that the state would not get used to a change during a generation. But its people ought to try to improve the living accommodations here, and they ought to arrange with the railroads to get people out of the town when they have finished their business. The above article is taken from the Milwaukee Free Press. The Free Press should be congratulated for its common sense for once. There have been times when the Gazette and Free Press differed widely in their political opinion. The Free Press has seen fit to cast aspersions on the Gazette's but the Gazette always realized that it jumped to the broad and butter side always. On few propositions have the two papers been in accord. However in the present case they act in accord. Madison should have the capital building. This is simply the renewal of the fight that was thrashed out years ago and settled, once and for all. Madison is the state capital and will remain so despite the efforts of Oshkosh or Milwaukee to get it away.

Apparently the ground hog who saw his shadow knew what he was about and the old weather prophet who foretold a cold winter from the bone of the goose read the signs rightly.

The man who had a spirit thermometer that froze up can appreciate what Perry went through up north now.

There are a few things that make it necessary to keep the furnace fires up this weather and that is the cold wave.

Janesville is behind the times. No resident of the Bower City has as yet claimed to be a wife of Hoch.

Chicago is howling over the breaking of banks and the arrival of Hoch and the cold weather.

Unless La Follette hurries up Congressman Esch will get all the glory for his smoke.

If any one wants to buy some snow at cheap rates Janesville can sell an unlimited quantity.

Among the places Jack Frost visited this morning was Janesville.

If that bill passes perhaps the governor will go to Washington.

The coal man enjoys these days. Yes, the plumber, too.

The legislature is once again oiled up for business.

PRESS COMMENT.

Racine Journal: The state text book publishing project should be dropped right now. It is simply politics.

Chicago Record-Herald: Owing to the prosperous condition of the country this year, all previous valentine records will be broken. Even prosperity has its dark side.

La Crosse Chronicle: La Crosse is not the only city that is afflicted with mossbacks, and our mossbacks are no worse than the St. Paul or Madison or the Dubuque mossbacks.

son Junction is decided upon as the place for the new state capitol there will be something doing in corner lots out there.

Evening Wisconsin: Cincinnati's reported understudy of Hoch in the art of love-making indicates that marriage is assuming the dignity of wholesale jobbing, in some quarters.

Milwaukee Sentinel: If there were not so many members of the state legislature that cherished gubernatorial aspirations the chances would be better for the enactment of sane legislation.

Eau Claire Leader: A Pennsylvania hotel keeper paid $100 fine and costs for serving venison to his guests out of season. After all its cheaper to eat beef until the venison trust is broken.

Menasha Record: The Green Bay Gazette had better "buck" up on geography. It was talking of the Nicaragua volcano as Panama. The two places are only about as far apart as Green Bay and Omaha.

Ashland Press: If Vermont, like Wisconsin, had abolished capital punishment, it would have escaped much unpleasant notoriety in connection with the order to hang one of its female citizens. Capital punishment is not necessary for the enforcement of law.

Oshkosh Northwestern: Still another city in this state which is now facing the problem of public ownership for its waterworks is Waukesha. Certainly considering the reputation of Waukesha water, it ought to be a good thing for the people of that place to own their own plant.

Deloit Free Press: The zeal of recent converts to republicanism in Wisconsin is quite commendable, and no one should be at all surprised if they exhibit a strong desire to be teachers of republican gospel before they have learned the simplest republican catechism.

Shawano Advocate: It is stated that Senator Whitehead of Janesville whom Gov. La Follette endeavored to defeat, now wants the republicans to bury the hatchet and work for the good of the state. Senator Whitehead is an excellent man and one of whom any party should be proud.

Madison Democrat: The Albany Times thinks that in eating no meat for four years Gov. La Follette has set another splendid example for those who desire to put the beef trust out of business. It may be suggested, also, that his course might give to politicians with unsatisfied ambitions food for thought.

La Crosse Leader Press: Mr. Esch isn't necessarily a candidate for president in 1908 just because an admiring southern paper says he ought to be. The La Crosse congressman is too modest to entertain such ambition. He is, however, making his mark in the house and there is large enough field there for any man's abilities.

Chicago Chronicle: The Chicago school principles who decided by a vote of two to one to recommend the abolition of the vertical writing had have followed somewhat reluctantly the business men of Chicago who, a good while ago, abolished the boys who were afflicted with that style of penmanship. It is a pity that practical men of affairs can not reach some of the other hobbies of the public schools with equal directness.

Appleton Post: The common council of Green Bay recently adopted a resolution fixing the annual salary of the mayor at $800 and of each alderman at $400. This is one of those legislative acts which should have a referendum attached. In that case, it is very doubtful if it would be ratified by a majority of the popular vote. Four hundred dollars a year, and extra for committee services is certainly a good deal more than the services of the average alderman is worth.

Waupaca Post: Steffens, the man who slandered Wisconsin—he has achieved an unenviable reputation for doing those things—broke loose again this month with "Rhode Island, a State for Sale." In his latest fling he again takes occasion to libel Wisconsin by saying that its legislatures are always for sale. This statement only lacks one thing to make it interesting—it is not and never has been true.

El Paso Herald: It is a cynical nihilist who remarks that history shows that most revolutions in Russia have been like the operation of starting a mired cart wheel—the part next the top moves up a little and stays there; the top moves downward and the mud at the bottom gets stirred up considerably. He attributes the ruction to the ambition of grand duke Vladimir to succeed Nicholas and says that there is likely to be a new czar. It is a significant item that the emperor's yacht was provisioned and prepared to start for Copenhagen at a moment's notice, showing that the sovereign was not threatened merely by the mob outside. There are "palace revolutions" in Russia as well as in Turkey.

MONEY MAKES MONEY

Idle Coin Does Not Increase Wealth.

Are You Making Money?

If You Would Find the Road to Wealth Invest in Good Mining Stocks.

Buy Before Prices Advance

FIRST-CLASS INVESTMENTS.

Buy Highland Gold Mining stock in Oregon at 25c per share. Over a million dollars in ore values in sight. 75-ton mill just started. Ore value running from $8 to $200 per ton. Highland stock will not be on the market after March 1st, and this will be the last opportunity to purchase the same. Buy 1,000 shares and you will never regret it.

Buy Great Western Gold and Copper stock of California at 10c per share. 175-ton smelter to start in a very short time; would have started before this had it not been for heavy rains. This is a bonanza sure, veins of copper ore 40 and 50 feet wide, and millions and millions of dollars in sight. This will be one of the largest producing mines in the state of California and the party who is so fortunately able to buy a few thousand shares will have a life income of great value.

Buy Amazon Gold Mining stock of Mexico at 25c per share. This mine produces four metals—bismuth, copper, gold, silver. Ore running in value from $200 to $1,000 per ton. This mine is located in one of the richest districts in Mexico. The company has two smelters in operation and expects to pay its first dividend inside of 60 days and stock will advance in price in a very short time from 25c to $2 per share.

Buy Little Jap Zinc and Lead stock of Platteville, Wisconsin at 15c per share. This is a tunnel proposition and is in the mine 150 feet and Jack was found the full distance and of the best quality; no pumping of water and no hoisting machinery required. And think of the low price—15c per share. This price will not remain long. It will go higher. One company in Platteville the stock is worth $300 per share and paying $10 per share per month dividend. I say, buy Little Jap. Don't wait and pay $1 per share.

What are you receiving from your money, 3, 5, 6 per cent and the principal remains the same? Yes, Well, that's O. K. But why not invest your money in above mining stocks that are safe and sure and obtain 50 to 100 per cent yearly on your money invested and the principal grows in value ten times its present value? This is a business proposition and no hot air.

ELECTRIC SUGGESTIONS.

For space lighting use arcs. For handsome effects use incandescents. For reliable power use electric motors.

An electric sign talks to the public or you.

If your competitors are using electricity in their business, and you are not, it is a handicap race, in their favor.

Automatic closet lights are time and temper savers, and cost next to nothing to operate.

If the steam is on and the room is cold, turn the electric fan on and let it blow against the radiator for ten minutes. It works like magic. It extracts the heat from the steam in a hurry.

Meridian lamps throw a strong light in the direction in which they point. Excellent for store lighting.

It is very a poor complexion that doesn't look well in electric light.

The successful man does not have to be driven to the use of electricity by circumstances.

SOON TO HOLD THEIR MEETING

SOUTHERN WISCONSIN ASSOCIATION MEETS THURSDAY.

SITUATION WILL BE DISCUSSED

Association Will Receive Answers From the Sugar Beet Companies To Demands.

On Thursday next the Southern Wisconsin Beet Growers' association will meet in this city to hear the report of the committee that consulted with President Davidson of the Rock County Sugar company and President Wagner of the Wisconsin Sugar company, relative to the demands made by the association for better prices for their beets. The conference which was held last week resulted in a refusal of both Mr. Wagner and Mr. Davidson to consider the proposed rules of the association and the result of Thursday's meeting is watched with interest by growers all over the county.

Many Contracting
Despite the arguments of the officers of the association many farmers in both Rock and Dane counties have again signed contracts for the coming year. Both Chief Agriculturist Myers of the Rock County factory and Walter Helms, representing the same company, report that there is but a small break among last year's growers and that in Green, Iowa and Lafayette counties a new field is being opened up and many contracts are being signed for the coming year. Meetings have been held in many towns that have been well attended by the growers and the culture of sugar beets has been explained thoroughly.

The Demands
The demands of the association upon the factory owners were as follows: Seed to be furnished by the companies, beets are to be paid for on a sliding scale, testing is to be done by a chemist selected by Dean W. A. Henry of the college of agriculture, and in case of the burning of a factory, the growers are to be paid $100,000 an acre and retain the crop. The price section follows: The company agrees to pay for all suitable beets delivered under this contract, at the rate of $4.75 per ton, net weight, for beets averaging 14 per cent or less of sugar, and at the rate of 2 1/2 cents per ton for each additional one-tenth per cent of sugar contained in the beets. In addition to the above the company agrees to pay 25 cents per ton for all beets delivered after Nov. 1 and 50 cents for all beets delivered after Nov. 15. Payment to be made on the 15th of each month for beets delivered during the previous month. The Rock County company agrees to pay an additional 25 cents a ton for all beets delivered in its factory in wagons. A circular issued by the association says: "The old growers generally say that they cannot afford to raise beets under the terms of the old contract which gives them only $4.50 per ton, less 25 cents per ton freight, for 14 per cent beets, and requires that the beets be weighed by the Western Railway-Weighing association and the tare taken at the factory. The weighing is sometimes delayed for a fortnight, entailing great loss to the grower in shrinkage and other shortages."

To Play Harmonia Club Basketball Five of That Place This Evening.

In Jefferson this evening the Y. M. C. A. basketball team of this city will play a five representing the Harmonia club of Jefferson. The game is the first to be played by a local five with that club and concerning its outcome little can be judged. Whether a return game will be played is still undecided, though a future contest in the local gymnasium may be arranged. The Jefferson team will be composed as follows: forwards, Leonard Mathews and Fred Wilkerson; center, Roy Palmer; guards, Edward Palmer and Harvey Lee; substitute, Rexford Brown. In connection with the Milton college Y. M. C. A. game here Friday night the second team of the association will either play the second team of the high school of this city or a team composed of Y. M. C. A. intermediates. Tomorrow afternoon the junior team of the association will play the five of the Boys' club of the Trinity church. The Trinity church team is but newly formed and as yet has played no games. Tomorrow's contest will serve as an index to the class work that they will be able to do, though they have not yet practiced a great deal.

COL. CHAS. PIERCE; HIS TEA-KETTLE

And the Marvellous Tale of the Young Man Smiley Whose Hair Froze to the Pillow-Case.

"It was certainly a cold day," mused Col. Charles E. Pierce. "Down in our kitchen we keep a tea-kettle of water on the stove so that we may have something warm for the morning ablutions. Well, sir, I took this kettle steaming at the spout to the next room and started to pour out a small quantity for immediate use, but before I could finish the task the stuff froze and cracked the wash-bowl." "Just so," said Cornelius McDonald. "You know Smiley? That lad was certainly up against it. Left his window open Sunday night and yesterday morning when he woke up his hair was frozen to the pillow case. Yelled for help and we, of course, seized the tea-kettle. Water red hot same as in case of Col. Pierce. Before we could reach the poor boy's side, I regret to say, the interior had frozen hard as a brick and the tin burst with a sort of 'bur-r-r-r-r-r-r' sound. Had to get an alcohol lamp and melt it off with that. Yes, of course, it was painful for the boy."

PROMINENT HERE FOR TWO DECADES

T. L. ACHESON SERVED CITY AND COUNTY 20 YEARS.

DIED AT 5:30 P. M. YESTERDAY

Was Marshal Six Years and Sheriff of Rock County One Term, Discharging All Duties with Credit.

Theodore L. Acheson, a prominent figure in Janesville public life for over twenty years, died suddenly at the home of his sister, Mrs. Wallace Cochran, on Park street at half-past five o'clock yesterday afternoon. Death was due to a general breaking down of his system caused by cerebral poisoning. While he had not been in the best of health for some time his condition did not become critical until the latter part of last week. At two o'clock yesterday afternoon he was believed to be on the road to recovery but a change for the worse occurred only an hour or two afterward.

Born in Newburgh, Orange county, New York, on Oct. 3, 1839, and one of a family of ten children, he came with his parents and family to Wisconsin in 1867. His father settled in Magnolia township, Rock county, where he resided until his death two years later. In the year 1883 Theodore Came to Janesville, Wis., in 1883, and was appointed sheriff of Rock county in 1886. He served two terms under that office and was continued in the same office by Sheriff Hanthorn in 1886-87. In the years succeeding he was constable from the third ward and in 1889-90 he served as under-sheriff for G. C. Babcock. In 1891 he was made marshal of the city of Janesville and discharged the duties of the office in an efficient and creditable manner for six years. Rock county tendered him the office of sheriff in the fall of 1896 and he served two years in that capacity. Since that time he has served in various capacities as constable and sheriff.

Friends Were Legion

Fair and just in all dealings with fellow-men, his friends in Janesville and Rock county were legion. Two daughters, Mrs. Samuel Brown of Sharon and Miss Nina Acheson of Oakland, Cal., and a son, Arthur Acheson of Janesville, survive. There are also six brothers and three sisters: David of Magnolia, R. B. and W. E. Acheson of Footville, Alex. of Colorado, J. The deceased was born February 1, 1823, in Pennsylvania. She was united in holy wedlock to John F. Blanchard in the state of Ohio in 1845 and with her husband came to Wisconsin in 1850. Nine children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Blanchard, of which three survive: Mrs. Emma Delatt, 116 Pearl street, Janesville; Mrs. Rosilla Humphrey of the town of Center, and George B. Blanchard of Waterloo, Iowa. Mrs. Blanchard was well-known not only in this city and Center, but in many parts of the county and was held in the highest respect. Bird of Wausaukee has introduced in the legislature a bill providing for the appropriation of $10,000 in two annual installments for a tuberculosis sanitarium to be located on the 240 acres of land in Lincoln county, left by the late W. RAILWAYS SUFFER FROM THE WEATHER

Traffic Partially Blocked on Both Lines—Trains Are All Behind Time.

Present weather conditions have been probably the worst that have been experienced by the railroads of the country for ten years. The temperature has not only been as low as has been recorded for a decade, but there is more snow lying on the ground now than there has been any time of late years.

All trains on all lines through the northern and northwestern part of the country and Canada were greatly delayed or snowed out yesterday, and traffic will not resume this morning, as the snow has become so thick and the wind so strong that the roads, the extremely low temperature of yesterday made it impossible to get the normal amount of motive power from the locomotives. The midnight flyer on the North-Western road failed to arrive until after 2 o'clock and the paper train, due here at 6 o'clock, this morning, did not reach the city until 9. Likewise was the train from Chicago, scheduled to be here at 10:30 o'clock on the St. Paul, about two hours late. While all trains from the south were late, the conditions north, especially around Baraboo, were still worse. Yesterday a local traveling man went to Madison and found that all traffic west of that city was blocked and was told that all trains until tomorrow would be abandoned. Today threatened to be bad for the railroad companies, but the wind which was drifting the snow this morning gradually died down and less trouble was experienced with drifts today than yesterday, though the companies have not yet recovered from the snow of Sunday and the cold of yesterday.

ONE TO LAST RESTING PLACE

Elijah P. Wixom

Funeral services over the remains of the late Elijah P. Wixom were held from the family residence, 153 Milton avenue, this morning at 10:30 o'clock.

Rev. Denison was the officiating clergyman and the pallbearers were from the K. of P. lodge of this city, of which the deceased was a member—Jesse Earle, E. D. McGowan, E. B. Helms, A. E. Magase, S. B. Hodges, and F. H. Snyder. Floral offerings were profuse and handsome.

The regard and respect in which Mr. Wixom was held by the K. of P. members was represented by a spray of carnations. Interment was in Oak Hill cemetery.

ELIJAH P. WIXOM was born in Putnam county, New York, February 15, 1835. At the age of fifteen years he came to Wisconsin with his father and family. On the journey to Rock county he was left by his father at Milwaukee to drive a flock of sheep overland from that place to the farm where they settled.

Clara M. Hurd and Mr. Wixom were united in marriage November 5, 1863. Of three children two survive: Mr. Wixom—S. Hurd Wixom and Mrs. J. S. Lamb of this city. Clara W. having passed away three years ago. There are left besides the two children: a wife; a brother, Benjamin Wixom of Fulton township; three sisters, Mrs. Julia Ann Kidder, Mrs. Phoebe Kelley of Milton Junction, and Mrs. J. W. Austin of Janesville; a grandson, Stuart Lamb. Late in December Mr. Wixom, in company with his wife and Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Lamb and son, went to California, but three days after the arrival Mr. Wixom was afflicted with a stroke of apoplexy, from which after a sickness of five weeks he died. The deceased was a stock-raised in Rock county for many years and one of the best-known pioneer residents. He removed from his farm to his home on Milton avenue in 1890 and resided there until his recent departure to California. Mr. Wixom was a member of the Knights of Pythias of Janesville and also of the Edgerton Masonic lodge.

HIS WIFE WOKE HIM UP.

Connecticut Man Nearly Choked to Death in Night.

No comment is needed on the following letter. It tells of fearful experiences that have fortunately been overcome.

"Dear Sirs:—

"Often in the night my wife had to wake me up because I was almost choking to death with catarrh. I had one of the worst cases that was ever known, and skillful physicians said it was chronic.

Fortunately a friend told me of Hyonol, and I used this treatment faithfully, and today am free from catarrh. I used Hyonol several five times a day and could soon see a great change. A complete outfit and an extra bottle cured me. I always carry a Hyonol inhaler in my pocket, so as to prevent any colds or slight catarrhal attacks that are common at this season of the year.

Yours Fraternally,

Thomas Finchman, Putnam, Conn.

It is the easiest thing in the world to cure catarrh or catarrhal colds if you use Hyonol. Breathe its health-giving, balsamic air for a few minutes, and your catarrhal trouble will soon be cured.

The complete outfit costs but one dollar, and consists of an inhaler that can be carried in the purse or vest pocket, a medicine dropper, and a bottle of Hyonol. The inhaler lasts a lifetime, while extra bottles, if needed, can be obtained for 50 cents.

In Janesville there are scores of well known people who have been cured of catarrh by Hyonol. If it does not help you People's Drug Store will return your money in accordance with the guarantee they give with every outfit.

HOME AND MONEY GONE.

Mrs. McFee Tells How Father John's Medicine Saved Her Life When the Doctors Gave Her Up.

Many times I have wished I could stand on the housetop and tell the world what a blessing Father John's Medicine has been to my family. All my life I've been doctoring. I had systemic catarrh, and four years ago pneumonia made a wreck of me. Oh, how I suffered. God above knows. I brought my family to want paying doctors' bills. My bureau was full of medicine bottles. I have had six doctors, but my cough was killing me. Every few weeks I had hemorrhages. My doctors gave me up and my friends looked for me to die. For my children's sake I hoped and prayed to get well. I saw home and money gone, but no relief. I thank God for directing my attention to Father John's Medicine. I can do all my work, and feel like a new person since taking it. It is a blessing, may it be to all who suffer, is the wish of one it has helped. (Signed) Mrs. H. McFee, 2133 Randolph St., Phila., Pa.

THE MINORITY

By FREDERICK TREVOR HILL
Author of "The Case and Exceptions," Etc.

(Copyright, 1904, by Frederick A. Stokes & Co.)

For a few moments after Croymen resumed his seat, no one spoke. Kennard, in the chair deliberately turned away, and looked out of the window as the only possible comment on such a proposition. Mr. Harlan's voice, seconding the motion, brought him back to gaze with astonishment at the speaker's face. Was this the same man who, only a short time ago, had moved the vote of thanks, and been his gracious host, and whose daughter—Kennard's eyes were flashing, and his voice had a note of contempt in it as he inquired whether any one wished to debate the motion. For an instant he forgot he was no longer in power. But the faces at the opposite side of the table speedily disillusioned him. With helpless rage he realized that this monstrous thing had been all arranged beforehand. He could read it in Croymen's barely perceptible smile, in Trundell's hard mouth, in Harlan's shifting glance, in Harkness' nervous fingers, in the stolid indifference of the financial big game. But it was Rogers who brought him to the full realization of what was happening. To hear Daniel Rogers—honest, blunt old Rogers—stooping to ask for delay instead of instantly denouncing the proposition in unmeasured terms, revealed the desperate nature of the situation.

Dave Maddox leaned forward and whispered a few rapid words in Kennard's ear, to which he listened without turning his head. Then he suddenly swung around and nodded an understanding. As Rogers ceased speaking, Maddox began an attack against the proposed measure from its legal aspect. He pointed out the inability to which any such action would subject the company, and hinted, for Harkness' benefit, at the possible risk to those stockholders whose individual responsibilities might be revived if the amalgamated company could not be held for damages. The board which roused sleeping dogs would scarcely commend itself to those subjected to attack.

"I see," interrupted Mr. Trundell. "Some of you gentlemen desire to be philanthropists if it doesn't cost anything. That's natural. But I don't propose that you do it at my expense."

Maddox continued without noticing the laugh which greeted this interruption. As a matter of law, he argued, the pensions were probably contracts which the company could not throw over at its pleasure. Anyway, the proposition required careful consideration and investigation. It was absurd to be penny-wise and pound-foolish, and to push through an apparent economy which might prove no economy at all. He argued the matter at length, coolly and dispassionately, not touching on the moral or ethical aspects of the case, but devoting himself to a logical review of the business issues involved, and ended by seconding Mr. Rogers' motion for an adjournment. Neither Trundell nor his party vouchsafed any reply, and the vote on adjournment was taken in silence. It was lost, seven to six.

Mr. Croymen moved the previous question. What was the real meaning of this motion? he asked angrily. Were the gentlemen who favored it blind to the fact that it involved the honor of every manufacturer whose plant formed part of the Confederate company? Surely no one present supposed for a moment that men who had pensioners on their lists would assent to any action which would throw helpless cripples upon the world, and rob them of money which was theirs by a higher right than law, simply by fattening the stockholders. What were they going to do about it? Was that Mr. Croymen's question? He would answer by asking another. Did the gentlemen of the majority desire to force the resignation of their opponents? Mr. Croymen's smile seemed to say they did. Then they might as well withdraw their motion, for it would fall of its purpose. The men for whom he spoke were neither knaves nor fools. He was well aware of the language he was using, and was responsible for every word he uttered.

Spaulding paused, and regarded each man facing him, to make his defiance as individual as possible.

"When members of this board," he continued, raising his voice, "undertake to cram such measures down the throats of honest men, it is high time they recognize with whom they are dealing! If war is to be declared, I, for one, accept the issue, and I'll wage it if it takes every dollar I have and breaks the company into the bargain!" Spaulding's fist struck the table as he finished speaking, and Mr. Trundell laughed aloud.

"Bow, wow, wow! Question!" he exclaimed.

"I move we adjourn," interrupted Maddox. Rogers seconded the motion, and it was again lost, seven to six.

"I move the previous question," was Trundell's only comment.

Kennard noted the dogged tone of the speaker's voice, and glanced anxiously down the table. Mr. Spaulding was whispering to Benson, and Kennard put his question slowly.

"Has every one who desires to do so spoken on this subject?" he asked.

Mr. Rogers would like to speak a few more words, and did speak them, lengthening out his discourse to half an hour. Then came another motion to adjourn, and another defeat.

"Question!" repeated Mr. Trundell, impatiently.

The room had grown dark by this time, and Maddox, as he rose to turn on the light, nudged Benson. Mr. Benson commenced by explaining that he was no great orator, but as director he desired to debate the matter further; and debate it he did with infinite deliberation, many repetitions, and one fixed idea. The meeting sighed its relief as the speaker closed, but he was barely seated before Maddox began arguing again with renewed vigor. This was too much for Trundell, who interrupted angrily.

"How long are you going to keep up this fool business, Kennard?"

"What fool business, Mr. Trundell?"

"You know! Trying to talk this motion to death."

"Do I understand you desire an adjournment?"

"No, sir. You understand nothing of the sort. I demand the previous question."

"And I will not put it until every gentleman who desires to speak has had a full hearing."

Mr. Trundell muttered something about child's play, glanced at his watch, spoke a few words to his partner, and moved an adjournment with a laugh so unpleasant that it sounded like an oath.

This time the motion was carried, and the directors took up their hats and coats and dispersed without the usual courtesies.

Outside the door Kennard's friends gathered about him.

"Well, Mr. President, we won the first round," Spaulding exclaimed, gleefully. "What's the next move?"

"Why, to call a stockholders' meeting, increase the number of directors, and outvote them, of course," answered Kennard, promptly.

Maddox shook his head.

"We can't do it," he interposed gravely. "The board is limited by law to 13 members. That's why Trundell insisted on the full number. It looks as though he'd caught us there, old man. We've got to bite and scratch some now, or be gobbled, so let's sharpen up our teeth and claws."

CHAPTER XXIII.

There were days when no elevated train traveled fast enough for Kennard, and hours when the frequent stop and start of street cars set every nerve tingling with impatience. At such times, active participation in the city's rush and whirl was the only possible relief, and to gain it he often walked to or from his office, not for exercise, but merely to quiet the wild spirit of unrest which demanded some physical outlet.

It was this necessity which forced him up Nassau street at the close of the directors' meeting.

Kennard picked his way along the swarming streets, noted and watched by thousands of curious eyes from hundreds of crowded windows and doorways—himself a contrast in the City of Contrasts.

"YOU DON'T REMEMBER ME, MR. KENNARD?"

Out of the atmosphere of sweat into the air of sweetness, out of the huddle of despair into the upright of hope, out of the shadow of squalor into the brilliance of splendor, out of the eye of envy into the glance of arrogance—one little stride will suffice you in the glorious City of Contrasts.

Delmonico's was a blend of soft lights and delicate colors. The whiteness of the linen and the glitter of silver were toned down by lamps and foliage to just the proper effect of elegance and good taste. There was nothing gaudy and nothing cheap. Everything was graduated, restful, and complete. It was impossible to reconcile this quiet, stage-like picture with the noisy, restless panorama he had just witnessed, and Kennard did not attempt the impossible as he gazed at the diners through the glass partition, even though the clatter of footsteps sounded in his ears above the distant strains of the hidden orchestra—footsteps that neither marched nor danced to the measures.

A CREAMY FOOD

Scott's Emulsion is cod liver oil prepared as a food—not a food like bread or meat, but more like cream; in fact, it is the cream of cod liver oil. At the same time it is a blood-maker, a nerve tonic and a flesh-builder. But principally it is food for tired and weak digestions, for all who are fat-starved and thin. It is pleasant to take; children like it and ask for more.

Francois the perfect maitre d'hôtel, Francois the respectful and respected, caught his inquiring glance and hurried forward.

No, M'sieur Maddox had not been there, that evening. Would M'sieur Kennard leave a message for him if he should come in? To come to M'sieur's rooms to-night? He should be told—certainly—without fail he should have the message. Was there anything else? No? Very good, M'sieur—Thank you, Good-night.

On one of the benches in the hall sat a coarse-featured man, his chin covered by a black stubble of beard, and his mouth hidden by a mustache of more luxuriant growth. His hat was tilted up on the back of his head, and his clothes were the unmistakable choosing of the vulgar man who desires to be well dressed. A type one would stare at in a place like Delmonico's, but pass without notice elsewhere.

Kennard's glance was attracted not by the incongruity between the man and his surroundings, but because he was gazing earnestly at a splendid, long-stemmed Jacqueminot rose which he held in his rough, blotchy hands.

The contrast between this coarse-grained, plainly personified, and the aesthetic beauty of the flower fascinated Kennard. But as he gazed, the man sharpened the graceful stem of the rose, and deliberately, even thoughtfully, began picking his teeth with it. The picture was instantly harmonious, but Kennard moved away.

At the doorway some one touched his shoulder, and he turned to find himself confronted by the man of the Jacqueminot rose.

They regarded one another for a moment without speaking—Kennard inquiringly, the other smilingly.

"You don't remember me, Mr. Kennard?"

A sudden flash of recollection recalled the speaker's face, but not his identity.

"Not quite."

"Um, I don't wonder, considering I've grown a beard and considering—well, other things," he added with a laugh. "However, let bygones be bygones, I say. I'm in a different business these days. Peter McManis is my name. I'm in the 'Guardian' now. Guess you've heard of that journal. Darned enterprising, ain't it? I'm a sort of free lance with no fear and some favor. Understand? Any story, from a sermon to a shooting, is meat for me. How's the Confed? Hopping up in the street, I see. Might do you a turn some day for the right tip on it. I hate the fool unions now worse than you did. Threw me down on some lie about committee funds. Trundell put me into this line of work. He and you are solid pals now, eh? Hope there's no hard feeling between you and me. Nothing wrong telling to-night? No? Well, so long."

The Sound of A Voice

By Keith Gordon

Copyright, 1904, by Frances Wilson

They met first in the dusk of a June evening, and, as Mrs. Stanton said, it looked like a sheet and pillowcase party. The drawing room was dimly lit with pictures, statuary and chandeliers draped in white muslin, the furniture bulking awkwardly in its summer linen.

Lansing had dropped in to see the Stantons and say goodby, and soon after Mrs. Audley, who was, it transpired, to sail with them on the morrow, was ushered in. She hesitated for a moment in the doorway, a tall, slender, unsubstantial figure in white. Then as they rose and Mrs. Stanton stepped forward to greet her she spoke, and the audacious heart of Richard Lansing fell, without a sound, without a flutter of resistance, a willing captive to the most exquisite voice he had ever heard.

In the flow of small talk that followed he was strangely silent, floating, as it were, on the music of that voice, with its beautiful modulations and strange, minor pitch. He scarcely heard what she said. Indeed, with a voice like that, words became ridiculously unimportant.

Relieved by Mrs. Stanton upon his silence, he replied to her banter awkwardly and with an effort, like a man aroused from a dream. Later, when Mrs. Audley rose to go, she extended her hand to him frankly. Then she drifted out into the glimmering light of the hall, followed by Stanton, who went to put her in her cab.

The moment they were out of hearing Lansing turned to his hostess, with highwayman-like directness.

"Where is Mr. Audley?" he asked sentimentally, with a grin determination to know the worst without delay.

"Really, Dick!" she mocked. "Is the foremost bachelor of our set taking notice at last? How very interesting!"

"Where is Mr. Audley?" he repeated doggedly.

"Dead these three years," she answered. Then at the long breath that she heard him take in the soft gloom of the room she added warningly, "But Penelope has many suitors!"

She had indeed so many that Lansing used to wonder afterward by what miracle she had been preserved for him. It was six months before he saw or, rather, heard, her again. A death in his family and the precarious state of the great business that he managed prevented him from carrying out his first mad scheme of following her pell-mell across the Atlantic had as many continents and parts of continents as need be.

After the first few weeks faithless Mrs. Stanton had ceased to keep him informed of their whereabouts. But, though Edith Audley seemed to have drifted beyond his ken, that rare, caressing voice still sounded in his ears, and in dreams he saw again that straight, slim, unsubstantial figure, the face a mere pale phantom from which two shadowy eyes looked out.

It was just before the Christmas holidays, and Lansing had decided that nothing should keep him longer, that in spite of fate he would sail for Europe within the next ten days, when the tinkle of the telephone bell aroused him. He lifted the receiver to his ear, and at the sound that greeted him he felt as if a flame of happiness ran over him.

"Is this 332 Cortlandt?" The voice was unmistakable. Though the wires imparted generously of their own metallicness, it was still the most beautiful voice in the world. Unlike Tibby's right foot, which had a rival in her left, Mrs. Audley's voice had no rival. Lansing was as certain that it was she who was speaking as he was that it was himself who was listening.

"This is 332," he began. Before he could get further there was a despairing exclamation from the other end of the wire, while the only voice in the world pleaded, "Won't you please ring off?"

Lansing laughed delightedly, but that laugh cost him his chance.

"How are you, Mrs. Audley?" he began, but a buzz, buzz-z-z-z, buzz-z-z-z was all that he got for his pals. Nor did his frantic ringing nor the things he said to central avail him. "Don't know, sir. Can't find out," was all that the distant, impassive voice of the operator vouchsafed, and with a sigh of exasperation he at last hung up the receiver.

She was back in the city then. Somewhere in the wilderness of brick and stone that incomparable voice was making music, but not for him. Suddenly Mrs. Stanton's warning remark fell upon his ears as if it had been spoken by some invisible presence.

"Penelope has many suitors." The thought goaded him. While he tarried, allowing mere life and death matters to detain him, what might not have happened? The truth came to him now with a terrible, crushing force. The one thing in life greater than all other things was love. And, strange and unnatural as it might seem, he loved with all his heart a woman whom he had practically never seen, since that brief, dim half hour in the Stanton drawing room seemed more like an encounter of souls than an actual meeting, where the sweet, strong woman of her had been revealed to him in that strange, vibrant, caressing voice.

Inquiry at the Stanton residence did not put him forward. They were still in Europe, and the housekeeper did not know when they would return. Nor could she tell him anything of Mrs. Audley.

Baffled, but determined, he left no stone unturned for the next three weeks, but without success. Edith Audley seemed to have disappeared in the crowd of the unknown, and he wondered if that fool Stanton would ever bring his wife back from Europe.

Then, in the most casual manner, the information that he had sought in vain came to him. Waiting moodily for a friend in the Turkish room of the Waldorf late one afternoon, the student repetition of a name at last recalled him to his whereabouts.

"Symington! Mr. Symington!" sang out a call boy in a nasal tone, looking inquiringly about as he sauntered through the room.

None of the men scattered about the room responded, and the boy tried another tack.

"Card for Mrs. Audley! Card for Mrs. Audley!" he reiterated, with an expression that implied that the fellow who had sent his card to that lady must be trying to conceal himself. Then suddenly a gentleman near the door beckoned to him energetically.

"Mr. Symington!" demanded the boy. At the gentleman's negative reply he looked away very weary. But when the latter, pressing a quarter in to his hand, asked a certain question he replied with mitigated severity.

Lansing's first impression of her when at last she came toward him in broad daylight was that she was like a reed. The eyes were dark and a trifle wistful, the mouth wide, flexible, with thin, rigid lips. And then that moving voice fell upon his ears for the third time, and he only knew that she was all that he had ever dreamed of in woman—and more.

"Talk to me! Talk to me!" he would beg playfully during the weeks that followed, when he was trying with all the arts he could master to lead her to the point that he had reached at a bound.

"I'm growing jealous of my own voice," she said to him at last, with a hurt, questioning look in her eyes. "I sometimes think that it isn't my friendship that you care for at all, but it's only that my voice appeals to you, touches some chord in you. I don't just like it."

And it was then that Lansing told her, told her with an ardor that she could not doubt, ending with, "Your voice, my darling, is the most beautiful thing in the world, but it's beautiful because it is you put into sound!"

And, being but a woman, what could she do but believe?

London's First City Directory.

The first directory dates from 1595, Queen Elizabeth's reign. A copy of it is in the British Museum, entitled "The Names of All Such Gentlemen of Accompts as Were Residing Within the City of London."

The next does not seem to have appeared for nearly a hundred years. It was called "A Collection of the Names of Merchants Living in and About the City of London." This was printed for Lee, Lombard street, in 1677. The names were arranged alphabetically, 1,790 in number. In a separate list were the names of no fewer than forty-four bankers under the heading "Goldsmiths Who Keep Running Cashes," twenty-three of them being then in Lombard street. This book contains the name of the father of Pope, the poet.

The first directory, expressly so called, was compiled by Brown in 1732, who soon issued it annually and realized through it a large fortune. The earliest postoffice directory appeared in 1800 and successive volumes have been brought out yearly ever since.—London Telegraph.

Story of Ganymede's Birth.

A college professor while giving an examination in mythology in a country school called upon a bright looking girl and asked the following question: "Who was Ganymede?"

Promptly came the answer, "Ganymede was the son of Olympus and an eagle."

The class teacher, blushed for her pupil and exclaimed: "Why, Elizabeth! Where did you learn that?"

"Indeed it says so in the book," replied the girl.

The professor then asked the girl to find the place and read the paragraph aloud, whereupon the class was both astonished and delighted to learn that Ganymede was borne to Olympus by an eagle.—Lippincott's.

MITCHELL SAYS HE SENT LETTER

NOT ATTEMPT TO INFLUENCE

Solon Declares He Had Retained Judge Tanner as Counsel and Wished Him to Visit Washington to Consult With Associate.

Washington, Feb. 14.—Senator Mitchell acknowledged he wrote the letter to his partner, Judge A. H. Tanner, which is believed by the federal authorities in Oregon to be tantamount to a confession of guilt. The senator, however, denies he attempted in the letter to influence his partner's evidence before the grand jury, and that it was merely a communication such as any client might write to his counsel. In a statement he said:

"I sent the letter as published, and for this reason, as I think, in part, at least, appears on its face. After I had been indicted Judge Tanner had been retained by me as my leading attorney for my defense, and he had consented to act as such, as his letters in my possession would clearly show. Senator Fulton also had consented to act as his associate in my defense.

"I was extremely anxious that Tanner should come here for a consultation with Senator Fulton and myself in regard to my defense, and the purpose of my letter was, as will appear from the letter itself, to induce him to come and bring with him all of our firm books in order that we might be fully advised precisely as to what entries had been made and by whom made.

Written in Confidence.

"I supposed I was writing a confidential letter to my retained attorney, urging an early consultation with me, his client, and with his associate, attorney, Senator Fulton. And, for reasons satisfactory to me, when I wrote the letter, and now, I desired to avoid publicity in regard to his coming, hence my statement in letter that it should be treated as entirely confidential.

"Any other questions that may be asked of me in reference to this letter or any other matter connected with my case, I will be ready to answer promptly when my trial is called. The suggestion in the press dispatches that I desired to talk to Tanner in regard to his testifying before the grand jury is preposterous, as it has been publicly known for some time that the grand jury would adjourn long before Tanner could reach this city."

Shows Regard for Colleagues.

Representative John N. Williamson, indicted for alleged conspiracy to defraud the United States of public lands, said he would not attend the sessions of the house of representatives pending his trial. Mr. Williamson said he believed it would be an affront to his fellow members to appear on the floor while the cloud caused by the charges is hanging over him.

Representative Hermann, who also has been indicted in connection with the land fraud cases, has been attending sessions of the house since the indictment.

GRAND JURY INDICTS.

True Bills Are Returned at Portland

Against Senator Mitchell et al. Portland, Oregon, Feb. 14.—United States Senator Mitchell again is indicted in the land fraud cases. Just before adjournment Monday the federal grand jury returned true bills against him, Congressman John N. Williamson, and Blinger, Hermann, Frank Pierce Mays, W. N. Jones and George Sorenson for conspiracy with intent to defraud the government.

The bill charges that the conspirators sought to have created the Blue Mountain forest reserve, in eastern Oregon, with the intention of defrauding the government of public lands. They also are charged with conspiring to obtain possession of 500,000 acres of public and school lands in several states to the value of more than $3,000,000.

The others named in the bill are former United States District Attorney John R. Hall, H. P. Ford, former Mayor H. L. Rees, Deputy Sheriff John Cordano, A. P. Caylor and Fred Simpson. They are charged with having conspired to defeat the ends of justice by assailing the reputation of District Attorney Hemeny. Rees formerly was connected with the paymaster general's office here, and was cashiered for embezzlement.

The grand jury was dismissed immediately after the indictments were found, subject to the call of the court. It is expected the inquisitors will not meet again until late in March.

JEROME AND THE THEATERS

New York Prosecutor Determined to Have Houses Made Safe.

New York, Feb. 14.—Following the fire in the Casino theater it became known that District Attorney Jerome has had experts visiting the sixty or more playhouses in this county for the last two months, making a thorough inspection. The reports of these experts have satisfied Mr. Jerome that thousands who attend the theaters are in imminent danger. He has determined to present the reports to Mayor McClellan, and if there is no immediate action to remedy the defects he will place the matter before the present grand jury with the desire to obtain indictments against the managers.

BRITAIN AND RUSSIA NEAR WAR

Diplomatic Correspondence on North Sea Affair Shows Belligerency.

London, Feb. 14.—The diplomatic correspondence regarding the North sea incident shows how near Russia and Great Britain were to a declaration of war. It gives a significant conversation between Lord Lansdowne and Count Benckendorff, the Russian ambassador, when the British government was apprehensive that Rojstvensky would continue his voyage to the far East without calling at Vigo. Lord Lansdowne told the czar's envoy that "in that case we might find ourselves at war before the week is over," and pointed out the concentration of the British fleets at Gibraltar and elsewhere.

WANTS MORE OF LEITER-MONEY

Wyoming Man Claims Larger Division of Chicagoan's Estate.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Feb. 14.—Attorney T. F. Burke, representing J. H. Pratt, who for a number of years was a partner of the late Levi Z. Leiter of Chicago in the cattle business in this state, has filed a protest in the district court against the partition of the Leiter estate in Wyoming as made by the three commissioners who were recently appointed by the court. The estate is valued at $400,000, of which Pratt owns 28 per cent. Pratt sets up the claim that the division of the property as made by the commissioners leaves him between $50,000 and $75,000 short of what he should get.

Father Buried Baby Alive.

Prairie du Chien, Wis., Feb. 14.—William Crawford and his wife's sister, Frances Crawford, have been arrested, charged with the murder of an infant. In order to hide his guilt with the woman it is alleged that Crawford buried his unlawful child in a barnyard while it was still alive.

Slay Two Large Wolves.

Keweenaw, Minn., Feb. 14.—After a twenty-five-mile chase a party of six hunters killed two large wolves east of here.

LEGISLATORS ON THE GRILL

Prosecuting Attorney of Sangamon County to Investigate Charges.

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 14.—Frank Hatch, prosecuting attorney of Sangamon county, is shaping his plans to make an investigation of alleged legislative corruption. He admitted that he will ask the county board of supervisors for deputy sheriffs with whom to collect evidence for presentation both to the grand jury and in court when the cases are called. He would not say what progress he had made or what evidence he now had in his possession. It is known that he does not regard very highly the evidence presented by Comerford to the investigating committee. If Comerford has other evidence Hatch will make use of it. He said he could not make a thorough investigation without assistance, and for that reason he would ask the supervisors for help. He will consult Gov. Deneen and hopes to get advice from him.
